Florida notes
A. A. Eaton
Nov. 2 — '03

For 4 days there has been a beautiful fall weather, the glass staying nearly 70° F. and the falling leaf, with here and there a touch of color, still left after the freeze of last week, the vari-colored oaks, and even here and there a few Aster Novi-belgii with an unwonted brightness for the season, gave an aspect of lingering October; but the migrants are gone. The last bluebirds with dreary ~~woo~~ notes, as if mourning the departing year, or the necessity that impelled them onward left a week ago, and the blackbirds followed a few days later.

These Indian Summer days are cheered by the truly winter visitants, the creeper, kinglet &c: yet today I heard a tree-creeper grake cricket under the oaks near the laboratory, in a sunny place, his song vibrations, yet with a touch of sadness in harmony with the impending death, both of the year and himself.

Morning at Philadelphia after a night in which I knew every important stop. The time at the ferry awoke me and must have everybody else. The night was a study in metabolism. Allowing that waking & its consequent loss of energy is katabolic and sleep and rest is anabolic. Then katabolism, then katabolism is often dependent on extra disturbing influences. It is induced by heavy jolts of shunting cars, shouts of men &c.

The most noteworthy event of the night was between Pawtucket and Providence, say two miles out of latter, a whole block or more was in flames. The buildings were mostly of brick so the flames were not very high. I had a fine view as I went on.

Philadelphia has much aspect of Boston, possibly not of so late fall, but at Wilmington Thursday bright a bit and we easily have gained a week. Bluebirds in augmented flocks, flee the approaching train.

Quite a lot of trees show color yet. About ten miles out of Wilmington the vegetation changes. The first change is at Phila where liquidambar is common. Below W. it is abundant, and the short leaf pine and rarely willow oak, yet in full dress, appears. This appears to be related to live oak.

At Perryville we have gained over two weeks, most trees, except ash, poplar &c. being in full autumn foliage. Short leaf pine is abundant, but our Northern evergreens are absent. Have seen two small long-leaf, or possibly yellow, also tulip-tree

There is an important change in the geology of the region. Instead of boulders and ~~sand~~ polished ledges & gravel, we have a sedimentary deposit, often clayey, sometimes red from impregnation of iron, gently undulating fields and fertile soil. We have left Moraines and boulders of the glacial epoch and are now

in the estuarine wash
from them. The waters at times were violent as desirable large pebbles are formed! at times Ice Cakes brought down boulders,
but they are almost absent beyond the Chesapeake

We rapidly gain on summer below Perryville, as vigorous trees of liquid
ambar, ~~wood~~ locust,
Ash. even mulberries
are in full summer green as are some ~~black~~ yellow oaks.
but it is evident there has been a very heavy frost

Nearly all the forests are deciduous outside of Baltimore, the only evergreen for miles being an occasional juniper. The yellow & white oaks, Cherries, sassafras are plenty yet, but I seen no maples, or none. The liquidambar looks so much like it I have thought I saw some, but couldn't make out.

Had a peculiar translocation. In going I had right side of car to Phila. where they reversed us in early morn. When we started out it appeared to me we were going north. The sun came up in the west. I puzzled long on it but it would dislocate.

After walking back in the car where I couldn't see out and then coming back to my seat the sun went to his proper place. Perhaps Lewitt can explain this.

A short distance from Baltimore there are lots of maples in full fall leaf. Alders in green leaf, and bracken yet green.

We have got into a land of pure sand and andromeda. The K.K. Company has its ~~rails~~ wires on 15 ft. poles and they are safe for they have ballasted the road with macadam the boys have not learned to use it.

It is fine to ride thro such full leafage on such a beautiful day after seeing ours [illegible]. It seems like clipping the wings of Father Time. But my eyes ache already.

I saw a new agricultural implement. The soil is a light clay, and when laid down to grass would last for a lifetime. A man was at work with a board 3 ft x 1, fitted with a handle, beating the clay

As you approach Salt Lake City you pass through a district of new settlements, with a look-out, as it has the appearance of a new western city. It is a mushroom city after all, as you may remember most of Montana

The first mosque I saw was white, but late. I saw some veils, half-hoods of the

Sculpture. About here
I saw the first deer-mouse since the winds & long frosts driving [illegible] aboard.

The sand has now become a fine white, and it looks odd to see strawberry plants growing in it.

Some patches of long yet of grass. I have found [illegible] but the best leaf is increasing.

The hundred here is a fine sedimentary, much cut up [illegible] but where streams have cut down there are boulders. So I find the geologists used here in Darby times. I may be of course. The [illegible] explorer.

Back of Hotel in the first entrance to Washington.

"Huckleberries"
willows. Old Log cabin on W. Eastern hill of creek Fir front. Hay the at north end, willows by Flat, but at Wash Hay go into autumn leaf colors. work it out.

Kentucky Coffee Trees are in full fruit display. The red oaks are the most glistening, warmest & beautiful leaves now. Maple leaves are just falling.

The first evergreen (?)
oaks live. a broad round-oak, just outside south.

The red maples all have very small leaves about 2½" diameter, and yet still

Finished typing these and sent. Wrote shortly by Lafayette from Paris, probably because of something Bonnie said. Told me Buck was killed.

All around me [illegible] Bonnie & Clyde. I have seen [illegible] Everything [illegible] heard a lot of rumors. Bonnie & Clyde are to be [illegible] are [illegible] Yes and [illegible] Buck. They weren't like [illegible]

In Baglan saw a grand man who looked like the Yale Prince of the Mexicans. He had the Cowboy hat. I did not recognize him at first. In the morning I went in to wash up. We ran out of Chemung Co., or near it, to Elmira a station. The door of the closet was locked. He stood by it. I said "I recognized it" The porter took the key and handed it to the key. He said "I'll be a good boy for you. I won't — on the floor" Late I asked him if he was a son of Mrs. Sid Conway. He said yes. Then I introduced myself. We had a Conversation Conversation on various topics. Hiram thinks it is not expedient now in connection with the Payne Dingley tariff bill to put what I have maintained all along. Am glad I can agree with him on some things as I have had to disagree on so many.

He invited me to visit him on my return, and I shall do so. Left [illegible] when he left his hands on my shoulders [illegible]

We were to take meals to eat nearly, I had but 5 minutes schedule time, for we worked fast.

Got a glimpse of Cap. F homes of Confederates, Contractor. Also Smithsonian building. Left Washington

The silver birch is found more or less throughout the most common. Although it is of less value as a good shade tree, cleared lands are not suitable for it. In the valleys, where the level is occasionally broken and adobe as near foothills, there is white and red oak, the latter being the most common. The live oak, which is evergreen in California, the leaves are used to breakfast tables.

The sycamore can be seen before us in many places. It is very useful and is not easily cut into logs. Cedar and pine (?) are found in the mountains, and a good deal of
